

Dear Sir/Madam,

During my job search I came across the job listing for HTML/CSS Web Developer - reference TS210210HTML.

Since I would love to start my career in web development, this vacancy seemed the perfect opportunity.

I have a HND in Web Development awarded by Edinburgh College and I'm currently enrolled in a PCAP Certificate Associate Level for Python. Adding to this, I am perfecting a course in Angular since I'm aiming at being a Full-Stack Developer in the future.

I would like to start from a position purely Front-End, although I am proficient in Javascript as well, should the need arise. I would put my whole enthusiasm in the job since I am really trying to put my first step in the industry despite the pandemic cutting my opportunities this year. I think and hope we could be a good match for each other and I can assure my hundred percent dedications, since this would mean a lot in terms of starting to walk towards the career path I'd love.

I hope to hear from you and I wish you the best.

Sincerely,

Silvia Di Bonaventura
